Flight consolidators

Bring flight content from external suppliers into a sales workflow. Apply channel pricing rules and give agency partners access to the offers they can book.

Bring in flight content

Review flight and fare information from the external sources relevant to your operation.

Apply commercial rules

Set markup rules for the agency or direct sales channel that will receive the offer.

Follow the booking

Use reservation records and sales reports to review what was sold through each channel.

Example workflow

A consolidator receives flight offers from two external sources, applies the margin for a specific sales channel and makes those offers bookable by its agencies.

External flight sources → Review candidate offers → Apply channel rules → Agency or direct release → Create the reservation → Sales review

Trace each agency booking back to its sales and supplier context, making it easier to decide where to resolve changes.
